

This is harder than it seems

I try to think of different things that don't effect any other reports. I don't want to be that guy that seems like he is copying people y'know?

I love the BBC School report and I love news I watch news related YouTube channels (like drama alert). BBC News report allows me to interact with the world or at least the news community

News reporting is so much fun because you're interacting with other people that are interested in what's happening in your area or even the world, depending what you're reporting on. Personally I think of news as an adventure on the internet finding information on the topic you're posting about.

I find it a lot of help listening to music while writing a report because I tend to get lots of energy from it. Every once in a while I get burst of inspiration and I just type away that's probably one of the best parts about reporting.

I find BBC News is the most reliable because they are funded by the government and don't need to rely on money by sponsors.
