Tales with Tilly

Reading to dogs can boost reading skills in young people as well as help with emotional and social skills. Dogs are non-judgemental, good listeners and unaware when a child makes a mistake. The process of petting a dog can help with motor skills and is also known as a calming factor that can reduce the pressure and anxiety that many of our students feel when asked to read aloud. CBSC's resident dog Tilly, kindly offered to listen to 4 of our boys who are struggling with reading and confidence for a variety of reasons. The boys were fantastic with Tilly, fully engaged and calm, they listened to my guidelines given before meeting Tilly and two of them who dread reading aloud couldn't wait for their turn, but did so patiently. Tilly was the perfect audience and soon settled in as you can see from the photos, her collar even matches the bean bag! We are looking forward to seeing more of Tilly in the library!

Maths Inspiration Show

On Tuesday 27th November, Miss Torpey and Mrs Patel took a selection of Year 11 and 12 students to the Savoy Theatre in London for a Maths Inspiration Show. These students were treated to a day of interesting and inspirational lectures on higher forms of mathematics, which included interactive quizzes, puzzles and demonstrations. The talks were lively and enjoyable, and showcased the amazing array of uses and applications Maths can have in all forms of life, both natural and man-made, from spinning a cycle wheel to bouncy balls. Highlights of the day included Ben Spark's lecture on "Number Dance" and why emotion, art and mathematics can go hand in hand despite the stereotypes, and Hugh Hunt's lecture on "Gyroscope, Spinning Tops and Boomerang Theory". All were interesting, entertaining and compelling lectures. The show closed with a question and answer session, where the audience submitted their queries to the speakers and received insightful responses.

Both staff and students had a really entertaining and thought provoking day

War Child campaign secures £11m funding boost

Last week the War Child 'Learn to Live' campaign came to an end. The week saw Year 10 student Georgie Abbot help deliver a petition and letters to Downing Street calling on Theresa May to increase funding to support the mental health and emotional needs of children affected by conflict. The Government subsequently announced an £11 million boost for mental health support for children affected by war around the world. To celebrate the end of the campaign the four schools involved in the twinning projects were invited to the Evening Standard offices where they were hosted by the editor George Osbourne and owner Evgeny Lebedev (and his bodyguard). War Child celebrity ambassadors Vanessa Kirby, Carey Mulligan and Marcus Mumford also attended. All made the students feel incredibly welcome and praised their hard work and efforts during the course of the campaign. Students enjoyed a tour of the Evening Standard and Independent offices while there, getting the chance to produce their own front page. The event ended up making the real front page of the Evening Standard the next day.
